Boston Elevated Prepares to Handle Passenger Business to Symphony Hall and Opera

In preparation for handling the crowds of Symphony concerts and of Sunday afternoon concerts, the inspector of the Boston Elevated company in charge of the territory at Huntington and Massachusetts avenues called at Symphony hall this morning inquiring for the cal endar of the season's musical events. Plans for handling the concert folk this winter will be in general the same as last year, the regular service past Symphony hall being strengthened on those Friday afternoons, Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons when musical artists call a throng to Symphony, and special cars being run from various out of town points to the Boston opera house on the nights and afternoons when per-

Teacher Is Interpreter

The one channel which must give this is an educational system so democratic in administration, sources of knowledge, and methods of diffusion that the citizen, through every stage of his development, by natural unfoldment, may find his relation to his environment, and its relation to himself. In this process the teacher should be the interpreter. This educational system, in its broadest meaning, includes every activity from which the child receives his impressions. Looked at in this light the changes which have taken place in these educational agencies have been only a transference of function, not a loss. The government has taken more workers from the society at large into its forces; the home has widened its scope of interest, and relegated some of its duties to the school; the school must become more elastic and adjustable to perform its added duties. To this readjustment there has been tremendous resistance. There has been a violation of old traditions. This resistance is natural and conserving. All changes which have demanded a reorganization of the educational system are in the line of progress. Spiegel Grove was so named by its former owner, Sardis Birchard, from the fact that in early days it contained many small and beautiful pools of clear water, which, mirror-like, would reflect the image of one looking therein; and "spiegel" being German for mirror, was adopted as an appropriate name for the grove.

CONSTRUCTION OF CHICOPEE TROLLEY LINK TO BE URGED

CHICOPEE, Mass .- A move for the onstruction of a trolley link between Chicopee Falls and East Springfield is being started.

Several large manufacturers of both sections are planning to take the mat-ter to the Springfield street railway authorities to see if the line cannot be laid down soon. There is now lacking to connect the two points about 11/4 miles of trackage, and it is thought that the expense of putting this down would be fully compensated for by the travel that would ensue. At present the labor situation throughout the section is complicated because of the lack of connections, and both the Falls and East Springfield are considerably handicapped.

REVERE

The New Haven railroad through its assistant engineer, Howard A. Dreare, presented a petition to the public service commission today asking for permission to extend a track parallel to B street, South Boston, across West First street. There was no opposition, and the commission indicated it would grant approval.

There was no opposition at the hearing by the public service commission on the petition of the Berkshife Street Railway Company for an extension of time within which it shall complete its extensions to Pittsfield and North Adams. Pittsfield was not represented at the hearing. City Solicitor Barrington North Adams said that he we ld not oppose an extension until Jan. 1, 1915, so far as his city is concerned. Bentley Brown, appearing for the company, out lined the reasons for the delay which is due to causes which the company could not control.

ELECTRICAL UNION MEN TO CONSIDER PER CAPITA TAX

Routine business was transacted at today's session of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Unions in Fancuil hall. Several questions were scheduled to come up for consideration, among them being the recommendation of F. J. McNulty, the president, that the per capita tax be raised from 30 to 60 cents a month.

Mr. McNulty in his annual report delivered at yesterday's gathering before the delegates went to Bass Point, denounced the I. W. W., declaring that its principles were inimical to the best interests of the working people.

PROVIDENCE MAY ENLARGE PARKWAY

PROVIDENCE, R. I.-Mayor Joseph H. Gainer has started a movement for the enlargement of the Pleasant Valley parkway, on the ground that the extension would open up a big section of the city. large enough to accommodate 50,000 people, and also that it would be of great advantage to the adjoining town, North Providence

"The parkway," said Mayor Gainer, "should be extended in two directions, from its present terminus, northwesterly toward the Fruit Hill reservoir and southwesterly across Chalkstone avenue and Violet hill to Manton avenue, where it would meet the new Merino bridge and Sept. 13 furnish a cross-town connection with Olneyville.

LONDON MARKET-CLOSE

LESS ACTIVITY SHOWN IN THE STOCK MARKE

Price Movement Extremely Erratic and Irregular - Coal Stocks Become Prominent Feature of New York Trading

BOSTON MARKET QUIET

Little animation was in evidence in the securities markets this morning. For some time past almost the entire attention of traders has been directed to Union Pacific and Reading. There was less activity in these stocks this morning and consequently business appeared dull. Prices generally were lower at the opening and further recessions occurred during the first few minutes.

Nothing definite has been learned concerning the plans of the Union Pacific directors regarding the proposed extra cash distribution which thus far is nothing more than conjecture. But speculators like nothing better than a rumor or mystery with which to send prices c upward or downward. The report of a co proposed melon cutting has been used Co with good effect by the bulls lately. Stocks rallied somewhat before the Co end of the first half hour. Trading in the Boston market was without special features during the early Ger part of the session. Butte & Superior had a good advance.

As the session advanced the coal stocks | Gt became prominent. Lehigh Valley, af. Gt ter opening up % at 1581/4 crossed 160. Reading was up 1/2 at the opening at 1111 1681/2, receded to 1681/4 and then rose to Ins 169% before midday. Peoples Gas was strong. After opening off 1/4 at 1231/4 it In advanced more than 2 points.

Mississippi Power was a weak feature of the local market. It was off 2% at La the opening at 381/2 and receded further. La Butte & Superior opened up 1/2 at 373/4 Me and improved fractionally. New Haven M opened off ½ at 86½ and sold above 87. Min American Woolen was up 1/2 at 83, a 10 M share lot changing hands at that price, the highest it has been in a long time. NE Stocks became distinctly weak in the Ner early afternoon. Before selling off Reading advanced to 1701/2, a new high figure NY for this movement. At the beginning of NOT&L the last hour the tendency was down. Nort & West ...

RED SOX BEAT CLEVELAND 5 to 4

Americans defeated Cleveland 5 to 4, in a touchdown.

PHILADELPHIA-Leverenz held Philadelphia to four scattered hits Thurs day and St. Louis won the game, 5 to 0. Battery and fielding errors by Shawkey and Schang gave the visitors their first two runs, while they bunched four hits with a pass in the ninth and scored three more runners. Graff, formerly of Binghamton, N. Y., made a fine impression his position well and got two singles and a pass in four trips to the plate.

Why Impeachment Trial Is Unique

THE Empire state has never set for its own and the nation's scrutiny precisely the form of judicial investigation which opened Thursday at Albany. Hence precedents of procedure are to be created as well as revered principles applied and a Governor adjudged. Nor is this all that is implicit in the sitting of the high court with senators and judges of the court of appeal as arbiters. If the augurs speak truly, ere the case is closed Tammany Hall, that by the use of the lash drove the legislators into the impeachment process, is to have its own record publicly disclosed with a realism like unto Zola's fiction. The evidence may discredit the Governor at the bar of the court, but he, it is said, will see that it is so supplemented with collateral facts that, although he may cease to hold office, the manner of his going will always recall to the future historian the beginning of the end of Tammany.

The trial opens with public opinion reflecting strikingly different moral attitudes of idealists and civic reformers unable to agree on the position which conscience decrees toward an official resting under such charges. The situation in itself is so dramatic, the antipathy of the accused for his real if not nominal prosecutors has come to be so intense, the mixed motives back of the prosecution are so obvious, the political results of either acquittal or conviction seem so certain, that many people are finding it difficult to think about the issues involved in the case with that clarity and integrity which are desirable. The court, unless it is most careful in defining its procedure, in limiting evidence taken, and in keeping counsel to their proper functions, can hardly escape some of the same temptations.

IF CONGRESSMEN shall be unable to get back home to their regular tailors between the close of the extra and the beginning of the regular session, that will be all the better for the winter ready-made clothing business in Washington. On the whole, Washington is not complaining of frequent or long sessions.

Banks in the Southern Americas

SOUTH AND CENTRAL AMERICA have not reached their present growth and prosperity without the aid of financial institutions, and as modern business revolves around a country's banking system, it is to be presumed that progress south of the Rio Grande is in some measure the result of a satisfactory bank equipment. But as the Monitor has pointed out on more than one occasion, the United States is the only considerable power which is not directly represented in either South or Central America with institutions conducted by citizens of this country. Germany, England, France, Italy have won business successes in such lands as Brazil and Argentina chiefly because their people were on the ground with money and with methods. The United States is spending some hundreds of millions to facilitate traffic between east and west and north and south, and when the Panama canal is opened there ought to be American representative banks in at least the principal cities south of that waterway.

When the American Bankers Association meets in Boston next month, the moment would seem to be at hand for presenting the South and Central American banking situation to an organization interested in such affairs. Conventions and conferences are useful chiefly because they permit discussion of matters that concern many. There may be cities in the United States which do not consider themselves particularly interested in Panama traffic and trade, and what is to come of them. On the whole, however, all the world is Representatives of leading banking houses in New York; and Boston have investigated the southern situation, and while opinions differ as to whether large or small banking houses would be better in the other Americas, this is perhaps a question of degree rather than of kind. Business with the southern countries cannot develop satisfactorily except banks are there to take care of trade. There may be more important matters than this business with the other Americas to come before the Boston gathering, but it would seem that any program will be incomplete unless the subject is at least brought conspicuously forward.

Considering the numerous and various entanglements in which it has become involved, friends and foes of the measure alike, we are quite certain, will pardon us for speaking of that San Francisco water supply measure as the Hitch Hitchy bill.

Equal Suffrage in Pennsylvania

BEGINNING with Oct. 6 and running through the week, a great demonstration in behalf of equal suffrage in Pennsylvania is being planned to take place in Philadelphia by the woman suffrage society of the state. The idea of the promoters is to carry the cause to the people rather than to follow the old plan of inviting the people to come to the cause. While several great gatherings are to be held in the center of the city, meetings, small or large as the case may be, are to be arranged for quarters of the community into which the suffrage propaganda has not yet penetrated. This, it is anticipated, will be but the beginning of a campaign intended to arouse popular interest in the movement through all parts of the state. It appears to be recognized as a fact that while a larger number of women than ever before are interested and actively engaged in the work of obtaining an extension of the franchise to their sex, the great body of womankind in Pennsylvania, as in many other of the states, is passive or wholly indifferent.

The woman's suffrage society of Pennsylvania does not intend, however, to depart in any way from the course long since adopted and consistently pursued in the furtherance of the cause. The suffrage leaders of the United States are as firmly convinced as ever, from all appearances, that the ballot must be won, if won at all, through intellectual effort and moral suasion. It must be won, if won at all, through the sex that is now privileged to vote, and since it has been won in other states by appeals to the intelligence of men, as well as to their sense of justice, there is no reason why it should not be won in Pennsylvania through just such appeals.

Suffrage has crossed the Mississippi within the last few months. To do so it had to attack and to overthrow some very formidable strongholds of doubt and prejudice. It is still shut out from the Atlantic, and by strongholds of doubt and prejudice long believed to be impregnable. The interesting question is, Will the week's demonstration at Philadelphia inaugurate a campaign in the suffrage movement destined to involve the entire Atlantic seaboard, and, if so, will the fortifications and entrenchments that have for so long a time secured man in the exclusive right to American citizenship stand firm against all assaults, or will they surrender gracefully?

THE proposed course in country storekeeping in Kansas will probably undertake to solve for the student the problem of conducting a country store without the assistance of a regular barrel-head

THOUSANDS of Americans know Europe better than they do the home land. They have explored it more thoroughly. If called to account, their plight is like that of Lowell who, after chaffing a Maine guide because he never had been to the top of Mt. Katahdin, had to admit that, though born in Cambridge, he, Lowell, never had been to the top of Bunker hill monument. Contemplating this ignorance of many American travelers, prophets have arisen who now preach "See America first." Up to date we have not heard of any of them being stoned. The moral of this preachment is as applicable to cities as to countries. Which fact gives point to the pilgrimages about Boston that the Chamber of Commerce has planned for and began yesterday. Having formally sent its delegates and members over South America, Europe and several of the New England states, the notion of getting acquainted with Boston has at last found lodgment. Men whose pursuits as manufacturers or traders have kept them fully informed as to all the details of their special businesses and the regions in which their shops or factories are located are to travel into other wards, become informed as to other industries, and envisage a very much larger community and more varied social structure than they have known hitherto.

The scheme is so superlatively good that it should call out many pilgrims about the city that has just celebrated its two hundred and eighty-third birthday. May advantage be taken of a rare opportunity! For while lacking in some of the spectacular features of the chamber's foreign tours, this schedule of trips to study local resources has been none the less carefully planned; and the hosts will be open-hearted and free-handed.

In connection with the discovery of an alleged mastodon skeleton in Connecticut, perhaps, everything considered, it is but natural that inquiry should arise in some parts of the country as to whether it is real or whittled.

THERE is unmistakable evidence of a revival of river traffic in the agitation that has just arisen in Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Louisville over the quality of drinking water served on the Ohio

It is now claimed that music may be transmitted by wireless but it does not appear that anything has been done in the matter of improving the quality of some of the music eligible to transmission.

America Leipsic's Exhibition

LEST there be undue acerbity over refusal of some European governments to make provision for exhibits in San Francisco in 1915. let it be borne in mind that neither the United States government nor the American book publishing and printing industries have responded in anything like an adequate way to the invitation long since sent them to be represented at the forthcoming exhibition of graphic arts at Leipsic, where, with customary German thoroughness, the great combined industry and art is to have such a presentation as never before was seen. For that matter it should be remembered that seldom have the higher interests of American living and its best industry and art had anything like due presentation to Europeans at their best expositions; and this hot because the chance has been lacking, but because it has not been

The strides made in the United States during the past quarter of a century in precisely those forms of art which are to be gathered at Leipsic have been greater than most Americans realize. A representative collection of the products of designers, engravers, printers and typemakers, if massed and given preliminary exhibit before being sent abroad, would open the eyes of native experts. Set up in Leipsic it might not have precisely the same effect, but it would create respect where respect may now be lacking; and in addition it would be a reasonable thing to do.

Our attention has been recentered on this matter by a published communication from an official of the Associated Advertising Clubs indicating the avidity with which the interests which he represents will do their part toward making the American exhibit a success, if they can have the incentive of cooperation with the government at Washington. There are few more cheering signs in the American world of printing today than the higher standards of typography on which publishers, advertising experts, and their clients among business men are insisting. There are possibilities of the use of art in connection with merchandising of goods which contemporary American journalism at its best can display at Leipsic without any expectation of aught save appreciation by intelligent continental Reverting to the share that publishers of the United States rightly should have in such an international exhibit, the case is not arguable. There is only one side to it. Why the strange apathy and refusal to cooperate?

RECENT statements by learned persons to the effect that the world will be overcrowded a century hence are being used by western real estate men to boom local building lots.

THE QUESTION which is beginning to interest the foreign bondholders in Europe most particularly is that of the solvency of the Balkan kingdoms. Many of the great financial authorities make little or no secret of their opinion that these states are on the verge of bankruptcy. Yet the one thing which seems to be already concerning their governments is the question of future armaments. The peace of Bucharest has left them jointly and out in war material.

Indebtedness of the Balkan Kingdoms

severally in complete distrust of one another, and as a result of this, the demand for more money is already beginning to be heard. That this money will be forthcoming, there is no question, but it will be forthcoming because the bankers of the high finance, in conjunction with the armor barons, see the opportunity for the negotiation of that modern species of loan in which a large portion is taken

What the indebtedness of the Balkan states amounts to as a result of the war, it is impossible to say. The Economist in a very carefully compiled table arrives at £25,000,000 for Turkey, £20,000,-000 for Bulgaria and £12,500,000 for Greece and Servia respectively. The debt charges on this would amount to £1,500,000 for Turkey, £1,200,000 for Bulgaria and £750,000 for Greece and Servia respectively. In other words, each of these four nations has increased its debt charges by a sum varying from one sixth to one seventh of its total pre-war budget. This estimate is insignificant in comparison with that which has been compiled by the Daily Telegraph, and which includes in its figures the loss for destruction of towns, railways, farm buildings and so forth. In this estimate, the cost to Bulgaria is calculated at £90,000,000, that to Turkey at £80,000,000, after which £50,000,000 for Servia and £25,000,000 for Greece is comparatively moderate. These calculations are, of course, extremely hypothetical, but those of the Economist it must be remembered are based on the returns made by the Balkan states themselves to the conference at the close of the first war.

Two methods of dealing with this indebtedness have been proposed. The first is that the bondholders shall agree to a general reduction of interest, in other words, to a partial repudiation of existing loans. The second is that the four powers concerned should individually undertake to reduce their naval and military expenditure for a period of ten years, to incur no additional expenditure in the way of fortifications, and to refer all disputes which may arise to The Hague tribunal. If the welfare of the Balkan people is to be considered for a moment, this would be the most satisfactory procedure, as a reduction of the existing debt charges by the states in question would probably simply leave room for larger expenditure on armaments in the immediate future. The grip, however, which the armament firms have secured upon the throats of the nations is indicated by the unemotional statement of the Economist, that the latter course would at once be met with the very strongest objections by the great international armament firms and the professional classes interested in naval and military expenditure.

It is manifest that The Hague tribunal did not come into existence a moment too soon, but the difficulties to be faced before the sword is beaten into the plowshare, in the metaphorical language of Micah, are not easily to be exaggerated.

IN THE EPITOME furnished by our Ottawa correspondent of the Dominion government's report on immigration for the year ending with March, 1913, and just issued in printed form, there is on the United States side of the line greater occasion for neighborly congratulation than for condolence. As has been the case for the last ten years, it is shown in this latest statement that a preponderating majority of the new arrivals were

English-speaking people. It is not intended here to leave the inference that English-speaking people are necessarily superior to all other peoples; the thought intended to be conveyed is simply that since Canada is an English-speaking country in the main, and especially so in the provinces that are attracting the greater volume of present immigration, it is decidedly in the interest of homogeneous colonization that the newcomers are English-speaking also.

Of the English-speaking arrivals last year, 150,542 entered from the United Kingdom and 139,000 from the United States. Only 112,881 of the total of 402,432 immigrants hailed from other countries. Of the last number, 2494 came from other parts of the British empire, so that, in round numbers, little more than one quarter of the arrivals for the twelve months were non-English-speaking. In order to illustrate the point that command of the English tongue does not carry with it, per se, a certificate of fitness for Canadian citizenship, according to Canadian standards of measurement, it might be stated that in the last ten years 917 English-speaking immigrants have been rejected. However, this was out of a total of 701,053. During the same period the rejected Italians numbered 1187, and the rejected Russians 867.

Following those from the British isles and from the United States, Austro-Hungarians take the leading place. These began to settle in Canada, it appears, many years ago, and the experience of the pioneers has encouraged others to follow year by year in increasing numbers. Last year the arrivals from this quarter numbered 21,875; in ten years they have reached a total of 164,527. It is worthy of note that these people do not hold a conspicuous place in the list of rejections. Next come the Italians, who are not regarded as permanent settlers in Canada any more than in the United States. Hebrews and Germans come fourth and fifth respectively, and Chinese sixth. The disposition of these last to send their earnings out of the country has created a problem for which a solution is sought in the imposition of a tax of $100 on each individual.

Canada has not yet so many or so serious problems in immigration as have come to the United States, nor is it likely to have, even though the arrivals be multiplied, if it shall continue to enforce its immigration laws rigidly. It makes clear to inquirers and all interested that it is particular with regard to the quality of those seeking admission at its ports, and nothing short of loose or lax methods on the part of individual officials can permit a lowering of BACON is said to be 128.5 per cent higher than it averaged between 1890 and 1900, and there are times when it seems worse than that, especially if served with eggs.
